BRITISH SUPREMACY GONE AND GER-MANY OUR ONLY RIVAL. This Great Prize Put Within the Nation's Reach

by the Vindication at the Polis of Sound Business Principles - A Word of Warning Addressed to American Manufacturers. LONDON, Nov. 10 .- I doubt if one American in a thousand has any conception of the value of the chief prize put within the nation's reach as the result of the vindication of sound business principles at the polls last Tuesday. Nor have the American people any idea how critical in the industrial and commercial history of the country the first four or five years of the new century are to be. A revolution in the foreign trade of the world is already well under way and its crisis is close at hand. The question is not whether America can wrest it from Great Britain. The conditions are such in this country that England can no longer retain it; she cannot, indeed, much longer hold her own against foreign competition in her markets at home. The real struggle now impending is between the United States and Germany for the world's markets, which are about to change hands. The reasons why Great Britain is losing and must continue to lose her foreign trade are absolutely conclusive. It is not neceseary to enter into them in detail, for they have frequently been explained and emphasized in this correspondence during the past five years. Briefly summarized, they are these:

Because the British workman is unprogressive, unskilful and indolent, and because labor is much more expensive in Great Britain than in any other country. The British employer and the individual British workman are alike powerless to change these conditions. I presume the impression still exists widely in America that labor is more poorly paid in England than in the United States. That fallacy has deprived American manufacturers of a large share of the world's trade for more than twenty years. The inference that, because a day's wages in England are 80 to 50 per cent. less than in the United States therefore labor costs more in the latter country, is defective in logic as well as false in fact.

There is no more deceptive standard by which to calculate the cost of labor than the day's wage. It needs no argument to make it clear that the workman employed at button making at $1 a day who turns out 200 buttons is twice as expensive as the man receiving $2 a day whose output is 800 buttons.

The truth is that the American workman and the German work man work for their wages and the British workman does not. Do not let it be inferred that Great Britain is a nation of loafers by instinct and choice. It is true that class distinctions and restrictions, which do not exist in America, kill ambition in this country, but the root of the evil is a far worse tyranny than that. The policy of the workman's own organizations, which restricts output to that corresponding to the capacity of the most incompetent and lazy of their number, is responsible for the collapse of British trade. It is almost incredible to what lengths this policy is carried. In the case of automatic machines. for instance, a British trades union sometimes requires the assignment of one man per ma-

The folly of such a policy and the inevitable ruin which it invites would seem to be sufficiently obvious, but it is still stoutly defended by trades union managers who are the real autocrats of the situation. They argue that work is thus provided for men who would otherwise be idle, and they are indifferent to the fact that idleness for all concerned will he their fate when foreign competition has had time to make itself felt. It is more than probable that English trade unionism will persist in its suicidal restrictions until it is too late to save more than a remnant of the country's foreign trade.

most tempting opportunity to rival peoples which history has recorded since the American Civil War. Then England gathered into her hands the sources of her present wealth. Today, as the price of England's folly America discovered that lost hair can be restored by may take her own again and more. Germany also is straining every nerve for the same prize Paris, Nov. 18.—The murder yearerday of Countess de Cornulier by her husband has caused a sensation in society here, where they were well known. M. Leroux, the solicitor, in whose house the crime was committed, says that the Countess was a model mother and that her conduct had always been blaneless.

The Count is a debauche He lived on his wife's fortune until four years ago, when the scandal of his life became unbearable to her and she resolved to separate from him. She obtained a decree, which was confirmed by the courts on appeal last August. The Count hoped to obtain the custody of the children, with a large allowance from his wife's estate, but being frustrated in this he became enraged and this induced the murder. M. Leroux adds that the parents of the Countess has arrived in Paris, and it is stated that he confirms to manaze her estate after she left her husband, and her visit to his house yesierday was connected with her property.

The fighter of the Countess has arrived in Paris, and it is stated that he confirms to manaze her estate after she left her husband, and her visit to his house yesierday was connected with her property.

The fighter of the Countess has arrived in Baris, and it is stated that he confirms the story told by M. Leroux. The full truth of the matter, however has not yet been sited. It appears that the Count and Countess each unsuccessfully sued for divorce recently.

When the night plateon was turned out last night at a clock Capt. Titus, after the men had marched around the assembly room and presented clubs in salute to their new commander, made a little speech. He said:

"A number of you men were under me when I was here before. You know how I expect you to perform your duty. I have always been the friend of those who do. The new men among you will find this out. Now I want the cooperation of each man in the work that is before us. If any one of you gets into trouble through any arrest that he may make I will stand by him. Neither pull nor politics shall hart you if I can help it. I wont ask any of you to do anything degrading. I wont ask you to do anything I wouldn't be willing to do myself. ## POLICE WATCH SUNDAY CONCERTS. Costume and Make-Up Allowed -Grand Opera

Sunday night concerts were given last night at thirteen of the theatres in New York city. These theatres were the Dewey, the Star, the Metropolis, the Grand, all four of Proctor's houses, the New York, Hurtig & Seamon's, the American, Koster & Bial's and the Bon Ton. In every theatre were policemen waiting to see if the law was violated, owing to the complaint made by the Rev. F. J. C. Moran of the plaint made by the Rev. F. J. C. Moran of the Actors' Church Alliance to Deputy Chief Cortright on Saturday afternoon against the concerts Edward Marks has been giving on Sunday nights at the Grand Opera House. In nearly every theatre the actors were in costume and wore make-up, thus violating the law, but no arrests were made except at the Grand Opera House.

Capt Moynihan and Detective Pearson of the West Twentieth street station were at the Grand Opera House to see that the law was not violated. The third number on the programme was a song and dance by Rose Sartella and Edward March. Both wore etc. ing dress, After the first verse of their first song they executed a few dance steps. Capt. Moynihan decided that they had violated the law and arrested them after they had finished their turn. John H. Springer, the manager of the house, was also arrested, but the police did not bother Marks, the manager of the concert. The three were taken to the West Twentieth street station and charged with violating the concert law. They furnished bail and were released.

street station and charged with violating the concert law. They furnished bail and were released.

"I am pretty sore over this," said Marks last night. "My show does not violate the law half as much as other concerts in town, We do not drop the ourtain, we use only one setting, and we allow no make-up. That's more than the other houses can claim. It looks mighty much to me as if they think from my namethat they can make a mark of me."

Capt. Sheehan of the Alexander avenue station with six detectives and two men of Inspector Grant's staff stopped any attempt at dancing in the Matropolis Theatre at 142d street and Third avenue last night, and after a man and a woman in costume came out to do a turn, costume singing was stopped, too. This cut the performance down to almost nothing. Frank Griffen, the manager, who lives at 119 East Fifteenth street, was placed under arrest charged with violating the Sunday law. He was bailed out immediately. The audience hissed the policemen.

JAMES SHEVLIN OFF SHOOTING Kings County Leader Thinks Croker Went Work the Wrong Way.

James Shevlin, one of the leaders of the Kings County Democracy, left Brooklyn for a shooting trip in North Carolina yesterday In an interview published in the Brooklyn Engle vesterday Mr Shevlin said that he did not like the method pursued by Richard Croker in parading in the newspapers what he had to say about the anti-vice crusade While I believe," he said, "that the organi-

As a matter of fact, the administration in power is always charged with all the evils that are permitted by the police. No matter what party is in power, the control of the police is a difficult matter. They have their own organization, which can beat the politicians every time.

"The police force is the worst trust in the country. They are all for themselves and seem to think they are put in office to make money outside of their salaries. The result is that they take money for allowing conditions to exist that are supposed to be impossible. I do not mean to charge all policemen with this sort of thing, but there is too much of it. You can transfer a captain, but the chances are that it will not do much good. He and his friends will say it is all politics, when you have the public interest in mind.

"If I were Police Commissioner I would never fine a man who was up before me on charges and who was guilty. I'd cut off his official head. They never come to me to get influence to help them out, I assure you.

So far At torney-Goneral Griggs is the only member of the President's official family who has given notice of a desire to return to private life Nothing definite is known about Secretary Root, who is in Cuba, but it is the general bellef that he and Secretary Hay, who both have at one time or another said in private conversation that they would like to retire, will accept the President's invitation to remain in the Cabinet It has been persistently reported ever since election day in administration circles, where the President's Admiration and friendship for Senator Wolcott of Colorado is well known that the Senator would step from the Senate into the Cabinet on March 4. When Attorney General Griggs announced his intention to retire, the politicians at once slated Mr. Wolcott as his successor. Whatever the President's intentions may be, however, with regard to this vacancy, it can be accepted as a fact that the Colorado Senator will not hold any office under the Administration. He has written to friends in Washington that he intends to go back to Denver when his term as Senator expires. Referring to his plans for the future "I shall be going East soon to serve out the remainder of my term, which ends on the sd of March. I shall then return to Colorado, where I have lived for thirty years and which is the only home I have ever known. I shall resume here the practice of my profession. Everything I have or hoped for, all my interests, all my associations are centred in the State. I shall for the destruction of the pagoda; on the conlive here until I die, and in or out of it, I shall continue to be a steadfast Republican, believing in the principles of the party with which I have been identified since boyhood. For twelve years I have served my party and the State in the Senate of the United States, and during that time I have cast no vote that I would change if I could. I am not in the least disturbed by the personal attacks which have been made upon me, for I am conscious of their injustice. The talk of my accepting other responsibilities out of the State is nonsense. There is no place like Colorado, and I expect to find here a field of usefulness and happiness for the rest of my life. There is one other word I must say. During the last campaign the Republican party was united and earnest and patriotic as never before in its history. In every county of the State the members of the Republican party counted sacrifice too great or no work hard that night bring success. Our gains have been tremendous, and the size of the Republican vote in every county of the State is most flattering. The credit of this is largely due to the women of Colorado and especially of Arapahoe county, who, with perfect organization and sincere devotion to the principles of the party, worked unceasingly to bring about its success. Personally, I am relieved at the outcome. As a Republican I
